

Organisational Coaching

Level One Certification

9-11 October, 2013 in Auckland, NZ

Training the world's most respected organisational coaches - in house and external

The IECL's highly acclaimed Organisational Coaching Level One is coming to Auckland, New Zealand in October 2013 and we invite you to join in.

Level One represents the first of three stages in the IECL's ICF Accredited Coach Training Program (ACTP). This is Australia's most highly respected organisational coaching qualification and conforms to the rigorous standards set by the International Coach Federation, so is recognised throughout the world. We have now certified more than 3,000 organisational coaches in Australia and Asia.

Level One teaches you the essential foundational skills of an organisational coach, including the models and structures that make for high performance coaching sessions.

You learn these coaching skills and tools in a practical and experiential way, building on the knowledge already in the room. Whether you are new to organisational coaching or already have some experience, you'll benefit from this rigorous foundational coaching training program. Backing up all the IECL's coach training is a strong and active Community of Practice which is accessible online.

At the end of Level One you will:

- understand what organisational coaching is and the context within which it sits
- have learnt and applied foundational models of organisational coaching
- be able to demonstrate the core competencies of an organisational coach
- have established your particular style as an organisational coach and learnt how to develop it
- know about the coaching relationship, in terms of framework, processes and outcomes
- understand how to frame and use coaching questions
- have practiced coaching and also had the experience of being coached
- have developed your "coaching toolbox" of useful models and skills
- complete a reflective learning task which measures your understanding.
- certify as a Level One coach

Your Level One includes:

- preparation activities online, from three weeks before your workshop
- a three day intensive, experiential workshop, in Auckland
- three follow-on co-coaching sessions, (required for certification)
- other follow-on activities online
- 37.5 hours of coach specific training
- a written Reflective Learning Task
- participation in the IECL's Alumni Professional Development Program
- Alumni Community of Practice online (first year membership included in course fee).

Previous participants in Level One say:

"The (level one) course was excellent! Credit to the Institute and presenters. There was a great mix of theory and practice." CLIENT RELATIONSHIP MANAGER, KPMG

Previous participants in Level One say:

"(Level One) program is informative, thought provoking, entertaining and meaningful. All facilitators were engaging - there was never a dull moment or any 'clock watching'. Thoroughly enjoyed the experience -thank you."

LEARNING AND DEVELOPMENT ADVISOR,
INTERGEN NZ

"Outstanding mix of facilitators who were prepared to share their experiences and differing views and approaches. This (level one) is hands down the most valuable learning program I have attended. I was educated and challenged at every stage of the program."
